The Tuesday Night Schedule

Summer Concert Series is Back

Steve Soreff, MD

The Nottingham Parks & Recreation Department (NP&RD) has just announced its 2022 Summer Concert Series. And, it is better than ever. Here is what Kortney Dorow Duball, the NP&RD's Director has to say about this year's line-up. "This year, the Summer Concert Series is going to be awesome!!! Bring the family for FREE live music, great company, and so much more! There will be yard games, firepits set up for smores, refreshments, and build your own Floral Bouquets!"

She went on to add, “Donations will be accepted to sustain this event. Make sure you stop by the Rec booth to check out what’s happening, purchase a Concert Junkie T-shirt, and more! Do you have lots of flowers and feel like sharing?? We are accepting flower donations on the Monday prior to the concert evenings. You can drop off any donations at the Rec Office, located at the Town Hall.”

This classic, signature Nottingham series of events takes place at the Bandstand next to the Community Center, 139 Stage Road. They start at 6:30 PM, are free, and are open to the public. Come early, bring your own chairs, walk the river trail there, and listen to super music.
